

Kelly Browning, Ph.D.

Executive Director for Impact Teen Drivers

Dr. Browning has been in leadership positions promoting awareness and education through youth programs over the past 15 years. She received her formal education from Minnesota State University Moorhead, the University of Central Florida, and her Ph.D. in Criminology from the University of South Florida. Prior to coming aboard with Impact Teen Drivers, Dr. Browning founded an inner city charter school in Tampa, Florida where she served as the Executive Director for 4 ½ years. Dr. Browning joined the Impact Teen Drivers team as Executive Director in November 2008.

To successfully run non-profit organizations, Dr. Browning has forged and maintained partnerships to ensure program success and the attainment of all stakeholder's goals. Her current work with Impact Teen Drivers merges law enforcement, education, the insurance industry, transportation agencies, and other corporate and non-profit organizations to successfully promote education and awareness of the dangers of distracted driving and poor decision making. Partners range in size from local school districts and non-profit organizations to state and federal governments and international corporations. Dr. Browning believes that it is only through thoughtful and successful partnerships that organizations can reach their potential.
